Details of the Terrible Di

Petalis of the Terrible Disaster.

[From the Morning Dispatches.]

The details of the terrible disaster to the ship Northfleet have been published, from which it appears that at half-past ten at night the captain and others were alarmed by a cry from the officer of the watch—"A steamer is right into us." The Captain and pilot rushed on deck, but before they got there, the steamer had run into the vessel starting her amidships and cutting her below water mar? The carpenter quickly reported her nearly half full of water. The pumps were started promptly, and the crew worked hard at them for some minutes, but when it was found that the water was rapidly gaining, a panic seemed to seize both crew and passengers, and officers couldn't keep them in check. A crowd of men and women had rushed up from the berths, many only half clothed. The passengers had mostly retired, but a few were undressing. The noise of the collision is likened by one of them to a peal thunder, and such was the violence of the shock that those standing were knocked down. It appears that the steamer rebounded and came the second time in collision with the Northfleet. The water began to pour in, and in a very short time the passengers' qurters were swamped. Women were slower to rush on deck than the men, and many were not in condition to go till the water rose threatening around them. No one on board the steamer was heard to speak, although loud and eager shouts from the Northfleet must have made the crew aware of the terrible danger that existed. She backed for two or three minutes and then steaming away was soon out of sight.

For half an hour the seene on the deck of three minutes and then steaming away was soon out of sight.

For half an hour the scene on the deck of the Northfleet was appalling. Men, cursing and swearing, fought their way toward the boats, whilst the Captain and the first mate roared out commands to the men to keep back and allow the women to get to the side of the vessel, but apparently without success. Rockets were fired and blue lights burned. A gun was loaded, but a screw of the ramrod became detached from the handle and the piece could not be discharged.

the ramrod became detached from the handle and the piece could not be discharged.—
The signals of distress were seen by several vessels, but appear to have been regarded as signals for pilot, for no assistance was rendered. Meanwhile the scene on deck baffles description. The captain finding the men determined to leave the vessel went below and armed himself with a revolver and ascending the poop, declared his determination to shoot the first man who tried to leave the vessel before the women were saved. The to shoot the first man who tried to leave the vessel before the women were saved. The first boat was launched and lowered by a number of passengers, by cutting the ropes, there being no ladder at hand. The only way of getting into the boat was by leaping or dropping some twelve or fifteen feet.

As there was a terrible rush towards the boat, the scene was one of distressing confusion, and a man and boy fell into the water and were drowned. The officers did all they could to force the men who first got into the boat to leave it that the women might be saved, but to no purpose. Even firing with saved, but to no purpose. Even firing with blank cartridge was first unavailing. About thirty persons having got into it the boat put off. Not one of the crew was in it. Another life boat was launched. A man got into it and was ordered to leave. He refused and the captain shot him through the calf of the leg. Then Captain Knowles placed his wife in the boat and said to the boatswain, who had already got in, "Here is a charge for you Bo's'n, take care of her and the rest and God bless you." Wringing his wife's hands he bade her good bye, saying, "I shall never see you again." It is impossible to describe the panic that raged all this time. Heart-rending shrieks on all sides. A passenger seeing the Captain's wife in the boat, threw his own wife in and tossed her baby to her, and entered the boat himself. A little girl was thrown into the boat by her father, who tried to save the rest of his family, but the seething, maddened crowd pressing toward the side of the boat prevented, and with his wife and two children he went down with the ill-fated vessel. of his family, but the seething, maddened crowd pressing toward the side of the boat prevented, and with his wife and two children he went down with the ill-fated vessel. The engineer made frantic efforts to save his wife and children, but was jammed between the cook-house and gunwale, and received dreadful injuries, and though arterwards rescued, is in a precarious state. Only two of the seven boats aboard were launched, owing, no doubt, to the panic, and one was seriously injured as the tackle was out, and the boat fell into the sea. When the second boat got off it seemed to become a question of moments. The quarter deck was crowded by men, women and children; some crying, swearing, and praying. The captain and pilot were together, and the latter was heard to say, "If you want to save yourselves, make for the top-mast," to which many people rushed. In the quarter of an hour a tup picked up a second boat, with thirty occupants, then steamed for some nime round the spot. About three quarters of an hour after being struck the Northfiete went down head foremost, with awful suddenness. There were 327 souls on board. At that moment the first boat wes 100 yards, and the second only 20 or 30 yards from the vessel. The crew of the first boat off the vestel. The crew of the first boat off the compants of the second boat, thirty-four passengers, and a pilot cutter rescued the pilot and ten men, who, having gone down with the vessel, rose to the surface and clung to the maintop mast rigging. The vessel lies in eleven fathoms of water.

The survivors say the captain displayed the greatest heroum, and maintained his presence of mind from the first to the last. He strove hard to put an end to the panic and did his duty bravely to the end, and was at the last moment going across the deck in the hope of enabling some of the crowd grouching round the shap. The survivors say the observed properly they sould have saved at least 100 more lives. The autorunate women could not climb the masts, although averything was done to help t

Chicago, February 8.—The trial of Osborne for the alleged murder of Mrs. Matthews commenced at Galesburg to day. The husband testified as follows: I left home on Monday morning, the 5th day of last August, to assist my father. Osborne knew I was going. I was gone all day and when I came home the curtains were all down. I went into the house and celled my wife and as she did not answer I commenced a search for her and found her in the cellar lying on the fibor dead, her head cut and mashed, her throat cut and her person violated.

He went on to show that foot prints from the house corresponded with Osborne's and that his actions when told of the murder were suspicious. There are 82 witness to be examined for the people and over 30 for the important properties.

York Before the Committee

Topeka, February 8.—Mr. York was before the Pomeroy Investigation Committee all day yesterday. His evidence not only corroborated everything detailed in his speech, but was given in such a straightforward manner that there is no room to doubt a single statement. York testified that just after he received the first payment of money Pomeroy agreed to use his influence to have him elected to Congress from the southern part of the State, and said, "York, you have made to-night the right kind of a start, and you will find the rest of the way to Congress easy." The Committee decided against the publication of the testimony, and excluded reporters when the names of implicated members were given.

The Louisville Canal-More Currency

Washington, February 7.—From indications now existing, and daily becoming stronger, there is little hope that the proposition requiring the government to assume the bonds and debts of the Louisville and Portland Caual Company, and making that work a national one with free tolls to vessels, will be adopted during the present session of Congress.

Representatives Monroe intends to make an effort to get the rules suspended in order to pass a bill expanding the currency to the extent of twenty-five millions in national bank notes.

Under the existing law the Comptroller of [Special to the N. Y. Tribune.]

Under the existing law the Comptroller of the Currency is required to take that amount of circulation from banks in States having more than their quota and give it to Western States. The loss will fall principally upon banks in the New England States, particularly in Boston.

The banks that are to suffer thus are naturally nawilling to submit to it and desire to avoid it by inducing Congress to give the West the twenty-five million dollars of bank circulation to which it is entitld in additional currency, instead of transferring it from them. The growing feeling in favor of speedy return to specie payment is probably strong enough to defeat Mr. Monroe's bill, SATURDAY, February 8, 1873. About twenty members of the Senate came together this forenoon and made a vain endeavor to put themselves in a position to do business, notwithstanding the record shows that at the adjournment last night no quorum was present. Much mystery hangs around the death of a young a handsome servant girl 19 years old, named Annie Smith, living with a family on Wabash avenue. For some days she has shown despondency, and Thursday night took poison and died in two hours. No cause is known. The coroner will hold an inquest.

The Personal Laberty League composed of like flavor about it, so that the fishhawks some overhead and follow it like little wanton boys who haunt bakery-windows to smell the pastry. The wild ducks seeking the pastures of Pamlico and Chesapeake passover this train, and grow confused, and wheel backward, as if wondering whether the Chesapeake has not lost itself. But when the Chesapeake do Ohio oyster express, filled up betwixt the jaws of Cherrystone and Lynnaven, with ballast thrown in of York Rivers and Elizabeth Rivers, takes up its march for the mountains, there will be more joy in the West over one oyster which migated than over ninety-and-nine which went not astray, and assume that the control of the mountains is the control of the mountains.

The trade in fruit and fish should be considerable by this road from the time of early Cape Fear shad and Norfolk peas to the apotheosis of the great Heath peach, which ripens in the tidewater ports like a remnant from Adam's garden.

Fallures in Society.

Society is full of failures that need never have been made; full of men who have never succeeded, who might have and should have succeeded; full of women who in the first half of their days did nothing but eat and and weaknesses. The world is full of men in every trade and profession who do not rmount to anything, and of girls men in every trade and profession, who do not rmount to anything, and of girls and women without any trade or profession, who have no desire to amount to anything; and I do not speak irreverently, and I trust not without due charity, without making due allowance for the inevitable in life, when I say that God and thoughtful men are weary of their presence. Every boy ought to improve on his father; every girl should grow into a nobler gentler, and more self-denying womanhood than the mother. No reproduction of former types will give the world the pefect type. I know not where the millenium is as measured by the distance of time but I do know, and so do you all, that it is a great way on as measured by human growth and expansion. We have no such men and women yet—no age has ever had any—as shall stand on earth in that age of peace that will not come until men are worthy of it.—

The Insurance Business.

The ninety-one life insurance companies in the country had a capital paid in in 1871 of $14,265,233; their assets were $319,560,509, and their liabilities, exclusive of capital paid in, were $268,278 06. These ninety-one companies had their head offices in sixteen States and the District of Columbia. New York had thirty-nine life companies; Connecticut, ten; Illinois, eight; Wisconsin, eight; Massachusetts, six, and Michigan, one. The aggregate number of persons who were insured in these companies at the close of 1871 was $41 738, and the total amount of policies was $2.195,545 013, an average of a little over $2,500 for each policy. The total receipts were $102 211,611, and the total expenditures were $61,468,945, including $22,567,419 for policy clams paid, or 60,14 of the receipts. In 1870 there were 88 companies, in which 774 927 persons were insured to the extent of $2.104,042,832; in 1869, 76 companies, which had 663 901 policies, the amount insured being $1 862,858,954. These figures show the great extent to which life insurance is carried in the United States. The Insurance Busine

A citizen of Richmond, recently on a visit to West Point, King William county, was attracted by the ancient tombstones in the graveyard there. When the Federals were at West Point they sent away several of the most antique as curiosities, and the vandals amond them broke some of the stones. Rosenzweig's counsel has put in a plea for dis charge on the ground, first, that he should not be placed in jeopardy twice for the same offense; second, because the law of 1872 repealed the act of 1869, and consequently there was no law under which to try him. The District Attorney joins issue on the first clause of the plea, and demurs to the second. The argument on demurrer will be heard next Tuesday.

Comptroller Green yesterday made a report to Havermyer, showing that $433,916 of the Court House expenditures went to Ingresoll's private account. This was done within thirty days from the first payments of the $600,000 appropriation for the completion of the court house, which was made December 1, 1870. Of the whole amount $182,084 was drawn on warrants with forged en-domements. The firm of Heath & Smith, to whom a warrant for a hundred thousand was charged was not in existence. Besides this, $77,350 was drawn in favor of persons whose existence has not yet been d scovered, $600,000 being thus disposed of. It appears from all the statements that the Court House Commissioners spent $1,066,482, of which there may have been genuine payments to the amount of $450,513, but of this sum there are to believe these charges are as fraudulent as the Ir is not likely that anything will be done with the Congressmen implicated in the Credit Mobilier steal.

SENATOR BROWN'S Territorial appoint ment has not been made yet. Some one ought to go to Washington to see about WEATHER prophets should certainly be at a discount for a year or two to come. All the signs this year failed to predict such a severe season. The squirrels, the musk rats, the rabbits, the corn and the early frost all led astray.

Ir is a great pity the Pilgrim Fathers did not know about the Isothermal Line on the Northern Pacific road. If they had they would never have landed in Massachusetts in December. They would have steered the Mayflower straight for Manitoba.

GEN. COBURN in a speech made in Congress yesterday, indulged in a good deal of "highfalutin" over territorial acquisition. Among other things he predicted that the American boy was born who will issue a proclamation from Moro Castle in Havanna. If he does he will do it as fillibuster and we trust he will be hung for doing it.

THE usual talk of the necessity of an extra session of Congress is going on at Washington. It will permit the new members, of whom there never was so great a number, to visit the Capital, choose their seats and draw mileage Some of the old members will be glad enough to be off with the old Congress, let alone beginning with the new.

Ir is said that one of the candidates for the Mayoralty has boasted that at one time he was enabled to make both ends meet by dealing in tobacco that had never paid the government tax, as he well knew. He might make a Mayor, but we doubt if the Republicans at this day feel like taking on such a load as that sort of a thrifty man would make.

Cincinnati Enquirer telegraphs that it is Ocean. C. on the check Oakes Ames swore he gave Mr. Colfax might have stood for Sam Cox, it says: The The Court State "They stand for Simon Cameron, as well. Is it not possible that Ames contributed this sum to assist the pure-minded Simon to wibble wabble the forty thousand short-haired wenches who voted in Philadelphia last October. Twelve hundred dollars would hardly pay a tithe of the cost price of the wenches he uniforms, in which they are said to have parambulated to the different voting places."

Ir is barely possible that the Credit Mobilier expose may have the effect of killing off the canal jobs for which Congress is being asked to appropriate money. The most formidable of these is the James River and Kanawha scheme, which will cost not less than thirty millions; next to it is the Niagara ship canal to be dug on American ground, and costing not less than twenty millions. These are simply immense chances to steal. Under the plausible guise of internal improvement cheap water transit and opposition to railway monopoly, scheming speculators hope to get fortunes out of the people. It is a tolerably safe assertion that if these schemes would pay as their projectors claim, private capital would be ready to build them. Why! millions of dollars are locked up in the savings banks of the East or are invested in securities which pay five, six, seven and eight per cent. and millions have been brought out within a few years to invest in railroads which were needed and were likely to prove successful. If these canals could be made profitable or if capital could see half the promised money in them, they would be built. If they would not pay, then there is no necessity for them and the government wants to have nothing to do with them. The whole demand forgovernment help grows out of a demoralized and vicious public sentiment, and if acceded to will produce a rottenness beside which the Credit Mobilier gouge will shrink into mediocrity. The Pacific road would have been built by private capital before now and the enormous gifts of the government only hastened its completion a year or two and put eleven hundred per cent. dividends into the pockets of Ames, Alley, McComb and other ring members It was too dear a price to pay for that whistle, and the experience ought to be a

THE Springfield Republican says the trap sprung on the guileless Pomeroy at Topeka, the other day, is not new in our politics, having been employed to defeat Corbett, in Oregon, last fall. Very little has ever got into the papers in reference to that election, which occasioned some surprise at the time. Corbett, it seems, thought he had things "set up," and was confident of a re-election, when an unforseen event came to pass. But let the Republican tell the story:

publican tell the story:

The cards had been skillfully put up, and there seemed to be nothing more to do but go in and win. But good classical authority has assured us that human affairs are uncertain. A guileful Oregon law-maker in the interest of Mr. Ben Holladay caused it to be intimated to a next friend and active worker of Mr. Corbett's that he was open to conviction—in fact, he was prepared to be seen. An interview was arranged. The friend and that treacherous legislator met: a witness was An interview was arranged. The friend and the treacherous legislator met; a witness was concealed in the adjoining room—the old detective trick—with his ear glued to an eligible, possibly artificial, hole in the wall. The friend was led on to make a proffer of money in distinct terms, when the legislator turned on him, explained the sifuation, and gave him his choice between taking his man out of the way and having the whole affair detailed to the Legislature, the Senate and the country. Mr. Corbett, from all that appears, was as innocent of any complicity in, or even knowledge of, the intended bribery as the babe unborn; but appearances were against him, he edge of, the intended bribery as the babe in-born; but appearances were against him, he had lived long enough to find out that men are apt to put the worst construction on things, and he didn't want to sacrifice his friend. The upshot of the business was that he got out of the way, and Mr. Holladay had the satisfaction of seeing his attorney elected the satisfaction of seeing his attorney elected to the Senate of the United States. Which satisfaction was not unmixed, however, for satisfaction was not unmixed, however, for though the attorney was put forward in his interest, he intended in his secret heart, after the field had been cleared, to come in and seize the place himself. But, like Miles Standish, sent to court a girl for his friend, the attorney concluded to keep the prize for himself, and though Ben, the rough, may have upbraided him in private, he had to smile and congratulate in public.

The Insurance Bureau.

The principal objection to an insurance department, in Indiana, at least, is that it would be an unnecessary expense. It would take several thousands of dollars to build up take several thousands of dollars to build up a separate department, and several thousands annually to keep the thing going; and it would not go any better as a distinct bureau than as a part of the machinery of one of the present State offices. The expense would ultimately come off the people, as well as other greater and additional expenses, which Mr. Shoemaker's bill makes necessary. other greater and which Mr. Shoemaker's bill makes necessary. Which Mr. Shoemaker's bill makes necessary. In Illinois, as is well known, the insurance in transacted in the State Auditor's intransacted in the St siness is transacted in ice, and with great sat

THE committee appointed to propose a for each agent of the Company. If the members do not do their duty the people will hold each one Legislature provides that the fees shall be of them responsible. They may report paid only once a year, thus reducing them one half. This will give $7,500 a year But it still provides for the retention of ness fees by the Auditor. If they are paid into the Treasury there will be almost enough from that single source to run the Bureau. The salary of the Commissioner is fixed at $3,000 and that of his deputy at $2,000 per year. All other expenses will not in any event amount to more than $5,000 per annum and probably not that much; the State will then have theservices of experts who thoroughly understand the business and can satisfactorily perform their duties. If the service is left to the Auditor's department it will be done about as it is done now, for that officer will not be likely to know much about insurance and will as likely appoint deputies with the expectation of having them do other work, which will not often assure fitness. We suspect the opposition of the Inter-Ocean's correspondent arises mainly from the fact that Gov. Hendricks will have to appoint the Commissioner if the office is created.

In regard to the question of taxing the premiums of companies it might be well for members to consider the advisability of enacting what is called "reciprocal legislation." That is, of taxing the companies of any one State just the same percentage our own companies would be taxed if doing business in that State. Thus: Pennsylvania taxes three per cent. upon gross premiums, and Pennsylvania companies should be taxed three per cent, here, Another State charges two per cent., and as one of our companies would have to pay that much for doing business there, charge the companies of that State as much for doing business here. As nearly every State in the Union levies some tax. the difference in receipts would not be great, while such a course would be more liberal on our part and tend to bring about that free trade between the States which must exist sooner or later. We merely make this point tentatively, as a suggestion to which some consideration may well be paid.

Hon. Josiah L. Keck returned yesterday from the city of Chicago. While one of our reporters was engaged in destroying his matutinal hash at an up-town restaurant, Mr. Keck, who had just "done for" a dozen fried, leaned back in his chair and puffed his "Intimidad." The subject of his travels coming up, Mr. Keck grew loquacious. "I tell you," said he, "that Chicago is a whopper. It's the finest city in the world. No man ever saw handsomer buildings than those in the burnt district. The new Merchants' Exchange is a magnificent building, They know how to do business there, too. Why, this town seems like Sunday to me. I tell you, we're nothing but a way station between the East and West. They can't get cars emough in Chicago to do their shipping. Now the difference between this town and Chicago is this: If a man goes on "Change in Chicago and says I want to buy twenty thousand barrels of pork, every body who has pork to sell whoops up and sells it to him. If I was to go on "Change here and say that I wanted ten thousand barrels of pork, they'd all think that I had got a point that the rest of 'em hadn't heard of, and they'd all draw their pork out of market. They'd think pork was going up, sure.

A young man stood up in the Chicago meeting, holding a slip of paper in his hand. "This is a telegram from Philadelphia," said the young man, "and it reads thus: "Uncle Jack is dying. Come on immediately." Uncle Jack was a rich and proud man in Philadelphia, occupying a high social position, with whom this young man had been dealing very faithfully, endeavoring to persuade him to make his peace with God by faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, and now, when he was looking death in the face, the poor dying mortal could think of no human being so likely to do him good as his young friend. "Now," said the young man, "I have telegraphed to Uncle Jack this reply: "I can not come to Philadelphia; but if Uncle Jack will believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, as sure as there is a God in Heaven Uncle Jack will be saved." Now," continued the young man, "I want this meeting to spend two minutes in silent prayer that the blessing of Almighty God may ga with this blessing of Almighty God may ga with this dispatch." The request was complied with. About 3 r, m. the young man received this telegram: "You need not come to Philadelphia. Uncle Jack is very happy in believing in Jesus. He is saved."

Bailway Travel in England.

Some interesting details concerning the speed of railway trains in England, have recently been published. The average rate of speed at which the quickest express trains travel is 47% miles an hour. But there are two lines on which this pace is exceeded. The ten o'clock train on the Great Northern road reaches Peterborough at half-past eleven; the distance is 76¼ miles, and the pace 51 miles an hour. The quarter to twelve train on the Great Western makes the run to Swindon, 77¼ miles, without stopping, and does it in 1 hour and 27 minutes, or at the rate of 53½ miles an hour. There are a number of other roads which make runs at the rate of from 45 to 52 miles an hour; but the rate of from 45 to 52 miles an hour; the journey from London to Bath by quarter to twelve train is the quickest in The distance is 107 miles, and it is done in 2 hours and 13 minutes, including a stoppage of ten minutes at Swindon. The actual time in traveling is 2 hours and 3 minutes—something over 52 miles an hour.

Lead, next to iron, occupies the most important place in the mineral products of Missouri. The lead mines are now only partially developed, but they cover a vast area of territory, and will in time prove a source of great prosperity to the State. Foreign pig lead was for many years imported into St. Louis, but the quantity gradually decreased, falling in 1869 to 7,857 pigs, and to nothing in 1872. During the past year the receipts of lead at St. Louis amounted to 285,769 pigs, or 22,882,650 pounds, of which 29,427,000 were produced in Missouri. The exports of lead from St. Louis in 1872 amounted to only were produced in Missouri. The exports of lead from St. Louis in 1872 amounted to only 4,718,223 pounds, leaving 18,164,427 pounds retained for home cousumption. The soft brands of Missouri lead are chiefly used for the manufacture of white lead, rivaling for this purpose the best imported pigs.

For the Good of Unruly Scholars.

Last evening the School Board determined upon the establishment of a school to which all unruly pupils are to be consigned. The method of discipline to be adopted in its government is just now a subject of wondernent, and the Superintendent is prayed to publish the rules and regulations speedily. Will muscular enforcement supersede moral sussion, and will the teacher or teachers be selected with a view to physical rather than mental endowment? Will the rod and the rack set aside the methods of punishment now in use, such as standing the pupil on the floor with a book on his head, or making him sit on the girl's side, or hold an object at arm's length, or say in after school? Surely we are drifting back to the good old days when hickory switch and beech rod stimulated the youthful faculty and quickened the pupil's perceptive qualities.

The Interviewed Beviewed. To the Editor of The Evening News

There is not a man connected with the city government from the Mayor down or from the dead animal (wo)man up that can put on and wear so admirably and to such effect an air of injured innocence, as can his Hon-or Mayor Macauley. I would suggest that some of his friends take him to Washington and "deposit him in the Patent Office as a model of" injured innocence. I am led to these reflections and suggestion by reading the report of an interview between his Honor and a reporter as published in your issue of the 3d inst. It will be noticed that his Honor declines of the District Prosecutor and says there is no possibility of error so far as his office is cencerned. Probably he is correct in that it, and secure his nomination for the third term for Mayor. In the month of February following, and a little nearer the day of nomination, he paid an additional $340, and got the nomination.

From February, 1871, to December, 1872, more than twenty-one months, not another report was made nor another dollar paid into the county treasury. On the 12th of December, 1872, after making up his mind very reluctantly, and in compliance with the earnest solicitations of his friends, to become a candidate for Mayor for the fourth term and candidate for Mayor for the fourth term and One of the deputy sheriffs will leave this evening with a delegation of prisoners for Michigan City.

The night schools have not been as successful as was anticipated this winter, and will be closed next week.

Extensive preparations are being made by the Odd Fellows for their social entertainment next Tuesday night.

Permit me to ask one more question. In view of all the talk, insinuations and suspiview of all the talk, insinuations and suspi-cions in regard to Mayor Macauley's admin-istration of city affairs, can the Republican party afford to nominate him for the fourth term? And in order that I may not be charged with partiality in this matter of ex-hibiting any especial feeling against General Macauley, I ask, can the Republican party afford to nominate General McGinnis as its candidate for Mayor if the charges published in the Sentinel during the last heated political campaign are true? Would it not be better to nominate a man who had never held office, and against whom there is it not be better to nominate a man who had never held office, and against whom there is no breath of suspicion? no charges of being in any way connected with sewer, tunnel, water-works or railroad rings. Shot. porary absence of Mr. Zach Mansur from his residence, corner Vermont and Meridian streets, last evening, a burgian was detected in one of the upper rooms, and larm given by Mrs. Mansur, who dispatched a boy for her husband. Two or three gentlemen on the street, attracted by the screaming of the domestics, crossed over to the residence, and at the same time Mr. Mansur returned, and after securing his revolver made his appearance on the porch just as the burglar prepared to swing down from the balcony, on which he had made his appearance when the alarm was first given. vented by his wife. In the meantime the rascal dropped, and a rush was made for him very complete in a fall line by several gentlemen, but he successfully of our Harris Seamless Kids regained his feet and ran north in the yard in all styles, shades and sizes. closely followed by George Crozier, Mr. Man sur and the balance of the party. Before he had scaled the fence two shots were fired, one by Mr. Mansur, the other is a matter of doubt, and a bullet was lodged in Mr. Crozier's thigh, striking in the rear and rang ing downwards, inflicting a serious but not cessarily dangerous wound. In the confusion the burglar escaped, Mr. Crozier was removed to his residence, corner Walnut and Meridian, where he now lies in a comparatively easy condition. From his statement it appears that his wound was caused by some one of the pursuing party, the burglar making no effort to shoot and apparently confining himself strictly to the business of escaping. Mr. Mansur is confident he fired but once, and that after the scoundrel had crossed the fence. Now the conundrum is. Who shot

Mr. Mansur claims this the second attemp made to rob his residence, and says he shot and wounded an unknown party early last Sunday morning who was trying to break in at the lower bed room window.

Amusement Matters.

The Library and Dramatic entertainment at the Third Presbyterian Church last evening was largely attended, and passed off satisfactorily to all concerned. The Arion Glee Club sang the beautiful "Waltz Song" with good effect, after which the tableau of the May Queen" was rendered in good style, and was well received. The "Dorcas Society," or in other words "a sewin' circle," created much merriment by their gossip on miscellaneous topics. The exercises were interspersed with several finely rendered quartettes, and the entertainment closed with a tableau entitled "Washington's Marriage." The affair was a success pecuniarily, the net proceeds being about $75, which will go toward replenishing their Sunday School Library.

The play entitled "Union Spy" has had good run at Masonic Hall during the week, and a matinee performance will be given this afternoon for the accommodation of school children and others who could not attend during the week. The play is some thing similar to the "Drummer Boy," and is the State Printing gone up? well worth seeing. With this evening closes their entertainment.

The Philharmonic concert at the Academy lost evening was not successfully attended, but the beautiful rendering of the "Song of the Bell" by the Mænnechor and Philharmonic combined, made it a successful entertainment after all. The orchestra was in splended tune, and acquitted themselves the other society were given in exquisite tion, and let it mot on lockin; for,

Pat Brennan had his trial comp day before the Mayor for provoking and as saulting Mrs. Mary Riley, one of his tenants, and the evidence at latest accounts had deof it, happened Christmas last, when Patan Mr. Riley got on a drunk, each with a gallo of whisky, and now according to the testi nony of the husband and wife Pat whipped her, while Pat himself and his boy testify that it was Riley, "bad luck to the likes of him," who whaled the ould woman, and then tried to lay the blame on him. At the ninth hour Counsellor Leathers put in an ap. pearance ou behalf of Pat, who is no fool of a lawyer himself, and it is likely the entire ground will be repeatedly skirmished over and then a change of venue taken.

The Late E. M. McDonald. At a stated communication of Ancient Landmark Lodge, No. 319 F. and A. M. held on Tuesday evening, February 4th 1873, the following preamble and resolutions were Whereas, Death has taken from us a noble brother and esteemed citizen, and the loss of our brother Ezekiel M. McDonald has filled with profound sorrow Resolved, That in the death of our young and gifted brother, Masonry has been de-prived of one of her most gifted and promising sons, society of a good citizen, a ramily of a devoted husband and father.

Resolved, That we deeply deplore the loss we have sustained, and that we tender to the pereaved relatives of our deceased brother our sincere sympathy.

Resolved, That in token of our sorrow the jewels and furniture of the Lodge be draped in mourning for the space of thirty days.

O'A Shrewish Scold. We point with pride and pleasure to the record which the Senate made for itself yesterday afternoon. The idle, profligate House met and adjourned until Monday afternoon, But the Senators, burdened with a sense of met and adjourned until Monday afternoon, But the Senators, burdened with a sense of their responsibility to their constituents, and jealously careful of wasting the people's money and their own time in junketing, sel-emnly gathered themselves together and he-roically sat it out for three hours and fortyfor the minutes! Net result of the long and laborious session, one small House bill defeated, one insignificant resolution adopted, and one buncombe resolution indefinitely postponed. With legislators thus diligent, thus economical, thus devoted, what a future the Hoosier State must have!

ixes odi Runaway. Last evening Jack. Macauley's horse took fright at some passing object in front of his residence on West Vermont street, and breaking loose he started at lightning speed east on Vermont. When at the intersection of Illinois he ran into a street car mule, knocking it senseless, and continued his way north on Illinois street until he came in contact with some obstructions in front of the residence of Mr. Rockwell, where he mashed the buggy into smithereens. To-day has been spent by Macauley in going around with a basket gathering up the fragments.

Dangerously Hurt.

Last evening John Eckley, a German, accidentally fell from a heavily loaded wood wagon, near the Michigan road bridge over Fall creek, and was dangerously hurt, the forewheel of the wagon passing over his breast and one side of his face, and causing severe external and internal bruises. He N. Tennessee, st., and surgically treated and to-day his friends entertain hopes of recovery.

An incendiary last evening attempted to burn Henry Wheatley's lumber shop, corner of South and Delaware, but the promptness Thomas and James C. Ferguson.
